Whistles Announce Opening of Drive and Raising of One-Eighth of Quota.

BULLETIN
Washington, April 28.—One billion dollars had been subscribed today to the Victory loan, according to unofficial reports. It was considered doubtful however, that the official figures, which the treasury recognizes, would reach the billion dollar mark by tonight.

VICTORY LOAN FIGURES.

Janesville's quota	$825,000
Subscribed	$100,000

Janesville has raised one-eighth of the Victory loan quota of $825,000. The din of factory whistles at one-thirty o'clock this afternoon announced to citizens and campaigners that the $100,000 mark had been reached. While the whistles were shrieking, seasoned loan solicitors were busy on the second lap of the race.

Everywhere they met with a ready response and continued enthusiastically about their work throughout the day. Captains of the men's and women's teams will make their day's reports at four o'clock tonight.

The intensive campaign got away to a gallop promptly at nine o'clock this morning at the signal of whistles. Workers started out in both the business and residential districts promptly and made unusual speed in their canvassing.

Appeal to Small Investors.
The appeal in the campaign is to all the people. The government with an eagle eye on the needs of banking house supports for future financing of war obligations, is depending heavily upon as wide a popular distribution of the Victory notes as possible.

The small investors featured the first day of the drive. Bonds of $50 and $100 denominations were subscribed by the hundreds.

Response is Gratifying.
Reports from the county indicate that the quota will be reached long before the closing day of the campaign, May 10. The number of voluntary subscriptions in the northern half of the county especially around Milton is gratifying to the campaign chairman who are now preparing for intensive drive to fill the quotas.

More Rallies Arranged.
Several more rallies have been scheduled for the next few days, as follows: Wednesday evening, Three Camp Fire group at Miss Stetson's; Thursday evening, Milton Junction; La Crosse-Bradford joint district school; Evelyn Morlet, teacher; Thursday evening, Maloy school near St. Pierre; Friday evening, Otter Creek school.

Four-minute speakers will not speak at the theaters the first three days this week but will get into action again Thursday night.

Factory whistles will blow as each $100,000 is raised. A large thermometer sign has been erected at the corner of Main and Milwaukee streets. The temperature is now up to the 100, mark and still rising.

U. S. FIRST TO GET TEXT OF COVENANT

Washington, April 28.—Publication by the state department of the revised covenant of the league of nations gave the text of the document to the American people several hours in advance of its presentation to the peace conference in plenary session at Paris.

The substance of the covenant, including material changes designed particularly to meet criticisms in the United States, had been disclosed two weeks ago through an official summary, but many members of the senate, officials and other students of the nation's foreign relations had withheld final judgment pending careful analysis of the complete text.

Apparently these observers found that the official summary had given a fairly comprehensive outline of the document, especially of the amendments. The new article specifying exempting international engagements and regional understandings "such as the Monroe Doctrine" had been quoted verbatim. The summary also had outlined amendments questions from the floor of the league providing for withdrawal of member nations.

160 Officers, 5,830 Men Reach N. Y. From Brest

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
New York, April 28.—One hundred and sixty officers and 5,830 men of the 77th (Liberty) division, drafted from Brest on the Steamship America today. The America brought altogether 7,051 troops. Casualties included 13 from Wisconsin.

DOUGH RIGHT! OH, BOY!!

The Salvation Army workers with the American troops in France won their outpoken praise and gratitude because of the tireless efforts to make things less uncomfortable. Comfort and heat line trenches—even the rest areas, do not mix at all. The Army could not give the boys real comfort but they could brighten things up a bit. And they did.

Of all the many activities of the Salvation Army workers abroad, the frying of millions of doughnuts was the most appreciated. It was the growing effort of widespread and efficient work and today the American troops are singing the praise of "The Doughnut Girl" wherever they go.

The Doughnut made the Salvation Army popular over here because the Salvation Army served up millions of them. "Over there," served them when and where the shell flew thickest.

Simply to officially recognize the important part the Doughnut played in the Salvation Army's work abroad, a day has been set aside by the managers of the Army's campaign during the week of May 19-25 for $13,000,000 for the Home Service Fund as "Doughnut Day."

Milky Way Is Popular Bottle Trail

One of the most internationally mixed congregations of things in the city may be found at the milk dealers. Milk bottles travel from one end of the country to another, spreading the fame of their respective homes. New York and Los Angeles meet on the shelf. A Housewife's soldier when getting ready to leave New York for overseas purchased a bottle of milk and much to his surprise found the bottle bore the trademark of the Merrick Dairy, Janesville.

Housewives who appropriate the bottles for fruit jars add greatly to the cost of milk, say the dealers. The incident was told of one woman who took six pint bottles of milk when they were not returned, went on a little investigation trip. Finding the kitchen table filled with freshly filled fruit jars per the milk bottle way, he calmly dumped the fruit back into the milk can and gathered up some $6.00 worth of bottles to return to their owners.

HANGS SELF TO DEATH IN HIS BARN

MYSTERY IN FATE OF CONDON LARSON, WEALTHY LAND TILLER.

THREE SONS SURVIVE HIM

Coroner On Way To Magnolia Corners To Conduct An Inquiry.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Footville, April 28.—Condon Larson, 60, one of the wealthiest farmers in this section of the country, hung himself to death today in a barn at his Magnolia Corners home.

Considerable mystery surrounds the suicide of a man who was widely known, rich and apparently in good health.

The decedent leaves three sons, two of whom have just been discharged from the army. One, Jacob, recently returned from overseas.

Larson was apparently in good spirits earlier in the day, chatting gaily with his three sons. His body was cut down from a rafter about noon.

He left no note or clue as to the cause of his deed.

County Coroner L. A. Whaley was to have left for the scene at one o'clock this afternoon.

AMERICAN BUSINESS DETERMINED TO MEET NEEDS OF NATION

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
St. Louis, Mo., April 28.—American business is determined to meet the needs of this nation and foreign countries as well, during the remainder of the readjustment period as after, leaders of finance and industry declared today at the convention of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

But to carry out this program, the speakers warned, there must be no further delay in bringing about closer co-operation of all branches of finance and industry. Relations between the government and business too, must be such as to instill greatest confidence, they declared.

With this co-operation of all finances, America will be able immediately to develop her foreign trade which was characterized by some delegates as "a responsibility to the rest of the world."

International commercial arbitration was a subject which received careful attention at the opening meeting of the big trade convention which was directed by the national councilors of the chamber. A special committee report probably will be acted upon by the first general session tomorrow.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
St. Johns, N. F., April 28.—The hopes of Harry G. Hawley and of Frederick P. Raynham, British fliers, rivals for a successful flight over the Atlantic, are centered on engines which, it was learned today, in neither case has been tested continuously for more than eight hours.

Faith in the stability of their motor to stand up under this almost unprecedented test is based on the fact that engines built from the same specifications have had bench trials exceeding 30 hours.

ALLIES DEMAND FORMER EMPEROR FIGHT FOR FATE

ARRAIGNMENT OF FORMER GERMAN EMPEROR IS ORDERED.

HOLLAND MUST GIVE HIM UP

"Supreme Offense Against International Morality" Charge of Allies.

BULLETIN
Paris, April 28.—The peace treaty with Germany as drawn for presentation to the Germans contains a clause providing that former Emperor William be tried by an international tribunal, it was learned today. A separate tribunal will try other military officers.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Washington, April 28.—Trial of the former German emperor for "a supreme offense against international morality and the sanctity of treaties" has been determined upon by the allied and associated powers.

Holland will be requested to surrender the royal refugee for arraignment before a court composed of five judges named by the United States, Great Britain, France, Italy and Japan.

The state department made public today proposed articles for insertion in the peace treaty to be considered this afternoon by the peace conference in plenary session providing for the trial of William II of Hohenzollern and also requiring Germany to deliver all persons within its borders charged with "having exercised acts in violation of the laws and customs of war" for arraignment before military tribunals of the allied and associated powers who nations suffered through such offenses.

Solves Big Problem.
Thus the peace conference commission on responsibility for the war has solved its most weighty problem. The state department's announcement of the solution was received here generally with surprise, because it was known that Secretary Lansing, chairman of the commission, had steadfastly opposed any attempt to bring the former Kaiser before an international tribunal.

Mr. Lansing contended there was no law by which such an offender could be reached by the conference, and that it would be contrary to the constitution of the United States to participate in the execution of a sort of international ex post facto law. At that time, however, it was proposed to charge criminal and military offenses and it was suggested today that the decision to base the indictment upon violation of international morality and the sanctity of treaties was taken to meet the American viewpoint.

New Articles Proposed.
New articles proposed for insertion in the peace treaty to be considered at the plenary session of the peace conference today, the state department announced today include the following:

Article 1.—The allied and associated powers publicly arraign William II of Hohenzollern, formerly German emperor, not for an offense against criminal law, but for a supreme offense against international morality and the sanctity of treaties.

It is proposed that a special tribunal be constituted to try the accused consisting of five judges, one appointed by each of the five great powers: the United States, Great Britain, France, Italy and Japan.

The allied and associated powers will request Holland to surrender the former emperor for trial.

Persons accused of violation of the laws and customs of war according to a second proposed article, will be brought before military tribunals and if found guilty, sentenced "to the punishments laid down by military law."

Persons Accused.
All persons accused of having committed an act in violation of the laws and customs of war who are specified "either by name or by the rank, office or employment which they held under the German authorities," will be demanded of the German government for trial by the military tribunal of the power against whose nationals the criminal acts were perpetrated.

The announcement issued by the state department follows:

"Following are the proposed articles regarding penalties for insertion in treaty of peace to be considered at a plenary session of conference today, Monday, at 3 o'clock p. m., Paris time."

Article 1.—The allied and associated powers publicly arraign William II of Hohenzollern, formerly German emperor, not for an offense against criminal law, but for a supreme offense against international morality and the sanctity of treaties.

"A special tribunal will be constituted to try the accused, thereby assuring him the guarantees essential to the right of defense. It will be composed of five judges, one appointed by each of the following five great powers: namely the United States, Great Britain, France, Italy and Japan."

"In its decision the tribunal will be guided by the highest motives of international policy, with a view to vindicating the solemn obligations of international undertakings and the validity of international morality. It will be its duty to fix the punishment which it considers should be imposed."

To Form Request.
"The allied and associated powers will address a request to the government of the Netherlands to render to them the ex-emperor in order that he may be put on trial."

Article 2.—The German government, not having insured the punishment of the persons accused of having exercised acts in violation of the laws and customs of the war, such persons will be brought before military tribunals before the allied and associated powers and if found guilty sentenced to the punishments laid down by military law.

"The German government shall hand over to the allied and associated powers or to such one of them as shall so request, all persons accused of having committed an act in violation of the laws and customs of war who are specified either by name or by the rank, officers or employment which they held under the German authorities."

Article 3.—Persons guilty of criminal acts against the nationals of one of the allied and associated powers will be brought before the military tribunal of that power.

"Persons guilty of criminal acts against the nationals of more than one of the allied and associated powers will be brought before military tribunals composed of members of the military tribunals of the powers concerned."

"In every case the accused will be entitled to name his own counsel."

Article 4.—The German government undertakes to furnish all documents and information of every kind, the production of which may be considered necessary to insure the full knowledge of the incriminating acts, the discovery of the offenders, the just appreciation of the responsibility."

Plume Posters Denied.

WISCONSIN PROTESTS HIGHER PHONE RATES

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]
Madison, April 28.—The attorney general's office of Wisconsin will file a brief in the federal suit under which several states seek to restrain the postmaster general from collecting the increased telephone toll rates in the state. Three months ago Attorney General Blaine filed a suit in the supreme court asking the court to restrain the collection of these toll rates in Wisconsin. The suit is still pending.

The supreme court of the state of South Dakota held that the state had the power to restrain the putting of these rates into effect. The supreme court of Massachusetts held that the action was one against the federal government and that it could not be maintained. The matter has now gone before the United States supreme court.

Attorney general Blaine and Deputy Attorney M. B. Olbrich will file a brief in the United States supreme court contending that the state has the right to restrain the rates that the suit is not one against the federal government and that the rates are excessive.
The supreme court has placed the matter on for argument May 1 and Deputy Attorney Olbrich will appear for Wisconsin in the litigation.

GOVERNOR PROCLAIMS ARBOR AND BIRD DAY

Gov. E. L. Dillingham has issued the following proclamation for the observance of Arbor and Bird day, Friday, May 2:

"This is the season of the year when the birds return to the budding and homes. The trees are budding and returning to life. The people of Wisconsin, which has been dormant during the winter months, has now returned to life. The people of Wisconsin with a view of conserving the natural wealth and beauty of the state, have provided by law for a holiday
upon which the children shall be taught the value of birds and trees.

"The observance of Arbor day and beginning it has had a civic motive and an association of patriotism.
"Another great war has come to an end and we shall seek the ways to perpetuate the memory of those who have made the supreme sacrifice. We wish to keep fresh in our own memories of what they gave and what we do by adopting with young trees
our waysides and our yards, each named for a fallen soldier.

"I suggest to our citizens that the origin of the day be borne in mind and request them to observe it by devoting the day to tree planting and to discuss beautifying their gardens and homes. All this will bring cheer and will help us to remember the great victory our armies have won and the sacrifices which our soldiers have made.

"In accordance, therefore, with established law and custom, I, Emanuel Phillips, governor of the State of Wisconsin, do hereby proclaim Friday,
the second day of May, 1919, Arbor and Bird Day, and I recommend that the day be observed by the planting of trees, the adornment of school and public grounds and by the holding of appropriate exercises in all the schools of the state, to the end that the greatest possible allotment may be attained in harmony with the spirit of this proclamation."

caging 7 field goals from all distances.
In the second game the English Lu-

speed and triumphed over the speedy St. Mary's quintet, 35 to 16. The vicond place.

As a result of Saturday's games the

RITCHIE AND LEONARD AT NEW YORK TONIGHT

New York, April 28.—Two questions now uppermost in the minds of fight fans—has Benny Leonard gone back, or has Willie Ritchie come back with him? The answer tonight when the two lightweight champions meet in two light-weight bouts in the First Regiment armory, Newark.

In the light of the dope sheets Leonard shows a slight lead. He has knockouts to his credit in bouts with such high class performers as Freddie Welsh, Johnny Kilbane, Joe Mandel, Ever Hammer, Ritchie and Leo Johnson.
Ritchie has only two knockouts to his credit. These were Yankie Schwartz and Joe Rivers. In his last paper decision. He also scored over Black Britton and Tommy Murphy and won from Ad. Volga on a foul. He met Freddie Welsh twice. In the first bout he lost in a substitute on short bout he won by a decision. In their second meeting no decision was given.
A hard battle is looked for tomorrow night, as both men have trained earnestly and are reported to be in tip-top condition. Each is ready to weigh in under 142 pounds, the stipulated weight.

Setting favors Leonard, the latest odds quoted being 3 to 1 that he will win the popular verdict. Several of his backers have made big bets that he will score a knockout and avenge
the mauling he got when he met Ritchie on the Pacific coast in February.

Two Match Billiard Games Tomorrow Night

played at the Smoke Shop tomorrow

He will meet Chan Kilmer in the first game and E. R. McKnite in the second.

the mark this season and become one of the leading pitchers of the Phillies this season. Watson has the experience and the ability to become a winner if Coombs can manage him.

GAS HOUSE OLYMPICS TRIM RED DEVILS, 8-3

Playing between showers, the Gas
House Olympics defeated the Red Devils, 8 to 3, in the second game of the series Sunday afternoon.
Dawsh, pitching for the Devils, was handicapped by the wet ball. This combined with poor support gave the Olympics seven runs in the first inning. Chamberlain doing the heavy work for the Olympics was never in danger and showed great form. Martin's catching and Meyers' successful one-handed stab in left field were the features of the game.
The two teams will play the third and final game of the series in the near future. The Olympics will play a twilight game with the high school Senior team soon.

NEW LADY DUFF GORDON MODELS FOR LATE SPRING WEAR

The frock at the left is called "Expectation." Here Lady Duff Gordon has combined crisp organza, fluted ruffles, dainty silk ribbon and moiré taffeta ribbon in an artistic and cool-looking warm weather frock. "Heather Dreams," the frock in the center is an ideal model for spring and summer in town and country. It is a whimsical combination of old fashioned lace, soft taffeta, long skirt, short tunic and surplice blouse. The lace forms a small collar which can scarcely be seen from the front. The tunic is elaborately embroidered in silk floss and beads. Quite chic indeed, is the striking black and white creation on the right. It has been named "My Joy." Ivory white crepe georgette forms the elongated blouse and black taffeta flounces, the skirt. The odd head girde brings out the wearer's own individuality and is usually of some brilliant color. Green is a favorite.

ODD FELLOWS AND REBEKAHS, GUESTS OF HONOR AT CHURCH

About 200 of the Odd Fellows and the Rebekahs were present as guests of honor at the evening service held at the Federated church last night. There were over 75 of the Rebekahs and over 100 of the Odd Fellows. The "Pilgrim Chorus" by Wagner was played on the organ while they marched in, and took their seats, the large flag, and standard being placed in front, and the flags and banners of the women located at each end of the seats which they occupied.

Or the Rebekahs, Mrs. J. Woods, worth was in command of lodge 26, and Mrs. S. J. Foster of lodge 171. J. W. Boyes was marshal of the Odd Fellows, and Fred Koebelin, command of the canton, and kept the bath and Wayne Wilbur of Lodge No. 14, and Fred Blukely and Fred Marsh of City Lodge No. 90.

Rev. Melrose Preaches
A forceful sermon was preached by Rev. J. A. Melrose on the foundation words of the order of Odd Fellows: "Friendship, Love and Truth." This was further illustrated by thoughts taken from Matthews: "Man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word which proceedeth out of the mouth of God." He particularly wished emphasis to be placed on the word, every, in this connection, and noted "that while the first need of man is daily bread, yet the world will not have Christianity until it has the right relationship with God in daily affairs."

He said that the great organizations of the Odd Fellows stood before the vital realities of life when they viewed these words, Friendship, Love and Truth, in the spirit of quest, and they represented the depths of experience.

"Man," he said, "had been blessed with a God given heritage, that while his feet were firmly placed upon the ground, yet with brow uplifted, he could look across to the promised land beyond."

Explains I. O. O. F. Motto
He considered that the placing of the words in order was no accident, but showed prophetic foresight.

"Friendship naturally comes first in the giving and taking of life, and it is mostly through human companionship that God comes to men," he said. It was noted that democracy had grown up from the soil, and that a fine spirit of fraternity had come to the men of the battle line during the recent conflict.

The beauty of friendship in the home life was dwelt upon, and the spirit of service found there which was liable to reach out to friends, to the community and to the world.

We are forced to learn how much we need each other," he said, "in all the experiences of life, and in this way it leads up to God."

He felt that this spirit of friendship lies at the foundation of life and reaches out to the meaning of the second word of the motto, "Love."

Tells Meaning of Love
"Every human friendship," he noted, "which was vital breaks over into love, and this also broadens the outlook on life, and leads to greater nobility of character and greatness of soul."

"Many a love," he said, "filled with romance becomes a plodding thing by the way, and friendship sometimes degenerates into habit."

He emphasized the thought that true friendship looks into a larger brotherhood, and expresses tenderness to those who are near them. This type of love, he showed, developed into service.

The next word, Truth, he considered could only be realized by experience.

"This is a prophetic word," he stated, "and in each human heart are potential possibilities of the life of God, and much of the attitude of living is in making the quest after friendship, truth coming up out of friendship, fruiting into love, will hear the voices of the soul, from the temple within."

He closed by saying that "God intended us first to be friends, that it was perfectly natural to love, and truth came as a gradual fruition of the whole."

"First the blade which is friendship, then the ear, which is love, and the full corn in the ear, which is embodied in the word, truth."

Rev. Francis L. Hayes, Chicago, led in prayer, and the choir directed by Professor Taylor, sang two anthems.

The Facilities for Distribution of the The Standard Oil Company (Indiana)

THE service which, at all times, the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is prepared to render its patrons, rests securely upon a solid foundation of complete distribution.

To perfect a system which shall make every product manufactured by the Company instantly available to anyone, anywhere, any time, has been the goal toward which this Company has been working since the day of its organization.

As yet this ideal has not been achieved; but the system as it stands is conceded to be the most perfect of its kind in the world.

The present equipment for distribution, including grounds, buildings, storage tanks, motor trucks, wagons, etc., represents an investment of more than $30,000,000.

There are 27 main stations where complete stocks of all products are kept on hand. Supporting these are the bulk stations located at 2881 carefully selected points in 11 states. These stations are equipped with storage tanks having a combined capacity of 86,113,650 gallons of gasoline, 66,115,300 gallons of kerosene, and 4,300,000 gallons of lubricating oils.

It is necessary to carry this tremendous stock—total 156,528,950 gallons—at all times to insure quick, convenient service to the patrons of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) wherever they may be, regardless of transportation difficulties or weather conditions.

To enable the Company to fulfill its obligations to patrons, and deliver to them the products they require, it is necessary to maintain a fleet of 3700 motor trucks and a caravan of 3300 horse-drawn wagons, either active or in reserve. These tank wagons are so organized that they, at regular intervals, can reach 75% of the homes in the territory at present served by this Company.

Supplementing the wagons, an equipment of 530,000 iron barrels, representing an investment of more than $7,000,000, is kept in service to insure the safe delivery of oils and gasoline, even to those remote places where the dark-green tank wagon never has penetrated.

For the convenience of the motoring public, a chain of 1300 service stations has been organized and many others are in the course of construction. These stations are prepared at all times to supply the motorist with his requirements of gasoline and lubricating oils in any quantity and at the lowest prices.

This, in outline, is the distribution system upon which the service of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) rests.

It is the hope of the Company that the time is not far distant when no person in the territory served will be more than five or six miles from a Standard Oil Company (Indiana) service station if he lives in the country, or more than one mile away if he lives in a town or city.

IT'S OUR TURN.

"He was twice wounded. But he was an ammunition carrier
and his machine gun company needed ammunition constantly, so in spite of his wounds and in spite of heavy shell fire this young giant continued to carry ammunition
throughout the entire action."

The above is but one of hundreds of accounts of valor excited in war department reports found in citations of young American soldiers who were Distinguished Service Crosses because of their wonderful devotion to duty
and their courage.

Many others who did not win medals
made sacrifices so that we might live in freedom. They went over to France because we asked them to go.
They stopped the Hun when he
threatened Paris and had his greedy
eyes on Washington.

Many others who did not win medals
live in freedom. They went over to France because we asked them to go.
They stopped the Hun when he
threatened Paris and had his greedy
eyes on Washington.

Now we must "finish the job." Our boys are over there. They have done their part without a whimper. They have brought credit to their country
—to their mothers, fathers, wives and sweethearts. They have earned a rest and all the comforts that can be given to them. They should be brought home as soon as it is possible for them to be released from their duties as soldiers. It is our part of the program to see that their return is made possible. We must subscribe for Victory Liberty bonds. It is but a small portion of the work which has been done. It is merely putting the finishing touches on a job which was done with all the thoroughness an American soldier can accomplish.

This first day's drive in Janesville indicates that our quota will be raised without delay. Everyone is going to be given the opportunity to subscribe for the amount they feel they can handle—and then asked to go a bit further. It is not a question of being able to afford it because the investment is so good that anyone who can lay their hands on money which does not have to be used for other purposes cannot afford to pass up the opportunity to take these notes.

Young folks, especially, are urged to go the limit in buying these bonds.
The rate of interest is attractive and the terms upon which they can be bought are easy. The money that is saved now in purchasing these bonds will start many a young man and young woman on the road to thrift.

Let us remember that the boys in France did their work willingly and well. They did it without grumbling.
Let us as cheerfully chip in to pay for the obligations which were made when the soldiers were receiving their baptism of war's hell.

CAMPAIGN ISSUES.

In the hurry-burly of digging up satisfactory campaign issues, the democrats have decided upon the freedom of the Philippines as a likely proposition at this time. An announcement comes out of Washington that the new republican congress will be asked to consider a bill providing for Philippine independence. That this will be a democratic move is a foregone conclusion. It is also the consensus of opinion that the republicans will not take kindly to the suggestion that they handle it. It is believed that the sentiment of republicanism is to give our citizens across the Pacific a more thorough training in self-government.
The republicans adhere to the promise of eventual independence given under the McKinley administration
but they point out that it would be a serious blunder to set them free prematurely and allow the islands to re-lapse into their former chaotic condition.

"The democrats were placed in rather a ludicrous position in 1916 when democratic votes defeated the independence provision of the Jones bill.
Manuel L. Quezon, head of the Philippine commission which is in this country, gives three reasons for asking the grant of independence.

"The first concerns our purely domestic and internal affairs, over which, at present, we have no effective control, no matter how wisely
they concern us," he said. "We can make laws, so to be sure, but those laws cannot have effect without the approval of congress and the president.

"Take the matter, for instance, of land and other natural resources. We Filipinos realize that, though we have great natural wealth in our country, it is by no means limitless wealth. We want to be sure that it is used wisely and property for our own benefit and conserved prudently for the needs of the Filipinos who are not born yet.
Waiting that, we may, for instance,
feel it necessary to forbid the sale of lands or other fundamental wealth to any foreigners. And we can make such laws. But before those laws become effective they must receive approval in this country, where, naturally, they will be considered not merely as they affect us Filipinos but as they might affect the United States in respect to certain possible international complications.

"Another great practical advantage of independence would affect our foreign affairs. At present we have no power to make any laws of any sort affecting them. We cannot make such a thing, for instance, as a trade agreement with any country. All such arrangements have to be made in Washington.

"And the Philippines are so remote,
their products and their whole industrial and commercial organization, all their economic needs are so different that it is very difficult, first, to obtain the interest of congress in them at all, and, secondly, to induce congress to consider them as what they really are—purely Philippine matters.

"A third great advantage we see in independence would be the fact that we were independent. Independence is like food. You do not miss it unless you do not have it. Its value is not something that can be about or settled by formula. If you asked a hungry man what the great advantage of food to him would be he would simply answer you, 'Food.'
And so we see the advantage of being independent. It is a fundamental desire with us as it would be with you if you did not have it."

OUR FIGHTER'S CHANCE.

The self-conditioned of the average American soldier was so supreme that the American casualties were affected. He disinclined to take cover and he rejected advice. He believed that he could do the job, and he did the job, but in many cases with unnecessary losses.

With that same determination he is coming back to civil life, in many cases maimed and handicapped, even that same brand of self-confidence,
he has in many cases allowed his self-confidence to handicap him in carrying on his work. He has refused to take advantage of the government's offer to retrain him so that he can take up life's burdens in a manner which would assure him success and protection. They get out of the hospital and are confident that they can "carry on" notwithstanding their handicaps.

The federal board for vocational education is trying to reach these men—men who still have the spirit and will prove independent, and yet
are fighting a losing fight in occupations that promise no future and which when normal times return will offer no opportunity for a livelihood.
It is desired to convince these men that the thing for them to do is to take this money for vocational education, the government offers, with liberal support for themselves and their dependents, so that they be certain of an adequate livelihood in the future.

With a wheat crop of over a billion bushels in prospect in the United States this season—the greatest crop
the country has ever produced—the need for efforts by farmers and elementary education to market and store grain with the least possible loss and congestion of traffic is impressed by the bureau of markets of the United States department of agriculture. In calling attention to this great marketing problem the department says that every possible measure should be taken to insure the safe storage and handling of this enormous crop.

Well, if the cotton producers of the south are allowed to organize a conspiracy to limit the crop and boost prices, there seems to be no reason why other producers should not do likewise. But watch the fellow that has to pay—the ultimate consumer—
if they go too far with that price raising performance.

Harden says that the masses of the German people are ignorant of defeat.
The peace conference has a grand opportunity to change that ignorance into understanding that something not exactly pleasant has happened in the last few months.

ON THE SPUR of the MOMENT

ROY K. MOUTON

SULPHUR AND LASSES.

How dear to my heart
Are the scenes of my childhood,
The sulphur and lasses
My infancy knew.
Every spring they came,
Hand in hand, as it were,
Mother used to mix that unholy
Alliance and we had to take it
Out of a large spoon, in fact.
The largest spoon in the world,
Which is one reason we have Never had a beautiful mouth.
It was stretched all out of shape
In childhood's unhappy hours,
And then we ran away from home
To become an undertaker.
But compromised on writing a column.
That was many years ago,
When we had stuffed Sulphur and molasses forever.
But this morning we had
To shut our eyes and swallow
The bowl of a large wooden spoon
Alight by our mother's hand,
And our patient wife
And our two kids had to do the same.
Mother is visiting us this spring
And she brought the ingredients
Along with her. It is thus
The innocent crimes of childhood
Pursue one to his last day.

HEARD IN THE PENSION OFFICE.

From a widow claimant for pension, questioned as to how long she had known her soldier husband prior to marriage: "He came to our house
and said he was hunting for a woman.
I was the only one at home and I married him."
For the testimony of a country doctor, of proscribed spirits, fraudulent and he gradually grew worse under my treatment and passed on to another doctor.

From the report of a special agent concerning the death of a soldier's former wife: "The inscription on a tomestone is often the best proof of the death of a person interested therein."

"Let me and Trotsky Have Split!"
Headline. How much?

We are glad to read a government report to the effect that resources are $305,000,000 higher than ever before at this time of year. But we wish to assure our readers that there is nothing personal in this whatever.

A former magazine editor confesses that he steadfastly refused to read manuscripts sent in by unknown writers. Perhaps he is the reason he is a former magazine editor.

Dear Roy—I note with sympathy
your concern about a gentleman named Giletto who raises whiskers.
We offer you this solace: Perhaps he is but preparing to uphold the family traditions in notable fashion by raising whiskers only to raise them.

IN THE CHILDREN'S PRESENCE.

I never look them over, never see their little faces
In the school rooms at their studies,
or the many sunny places
But behind them in the distance
these are shadows that I see
Of the grown up men and women
that some day they're going to be.

When I'm in the children's presence,
back of every happy smile
There's a subtle hint of splendor for the coming after while,
And I think the little fellow bending
new over book or slate
May be one that some tomorrow shall be ruler of the state.

Here they are, the men and women,
of the future. Who can read What great man now sits among them who shall serve his country's need?
Here perhaps in frock of gingham
with hair in ringlets curled
Is the heroine of tomorrow who may rise to bless the world.

In some way we all are teachers, as the children come and go.
And perhaps we should be wiser if
the future we could know.
We might hold to them more closely
if we had the power to see The glorious men and women
that some day they're going to be.

WHO'S WHO in the Daily News

DR. WONG CHING WAI.
Dr. Wong Ching Wai, one of the five Chinese delegates who reached the United States recently on their way to Versailles, says that China prefers American brains and American money in her development. He and his mission have been sent by the southern party of China to keep an eye on the diplomacy of the Northern or Militarist party
with which the Nationalists have been waging a long civil war.
China, he says,
does not completely trust Japan, with whom
Premier Tuan Chi
Jui in September,
1918, signed 20
treaties. The terms of 12 of these are not known yet. In one of the eight,
which have been published in part, is a clause providing that China must buy all her arms in Japan.
"But militarism will be overcome in China just as it has received its death blow in Germany," he added. "The civil war that has been raging in my country is the natural aftermath of
for the establishment of the republic, but it will soon be at an end. In the meantime my party wishes to know that the treaties being negotiated at Paris are all right and that no clauses are slipped in which might hereafter
give Japan, for example, an advantage over China. We want no secret treaties."

Approval of the principle of the league of nations was expressed by Dr. Wong wholeheartedly. China, he said, does not intend to complicate affairs by demanding recognition of
for he believes that such things are of local and self-adjusting nature.
"I have faith," he said, "that justice
will be done us, because President Wilson is behind the league of nations, and it was your great president who idealized the aims of the allied nations. I am heart and soul for the league of nations. In its present form it may need some modifications, but the principle behind it is the biggest thing to bear in mind. It will be that will safeguard the peace of the world."

Dr. Wong was a student in Paris
when the war broke out, and at once returned to China, where he was very influential in throwing the weight of China on the side of the allies. He is duent in French.

JANESVILLE ONE OF 405 CITIES KEEPING EMPLOYMENT BUREAUS

In continuing its employment office at the expense of the city and the Chamber of Commerce after federal support had been withdrawn, Janesville pursued a course similar to that followed in more than 400 other cities in the country. This is shown by a report of the employment forces now in operation, just received by Manager Fred Schmitt of the local labor bureau.

The number of offices has reached 461, 405 of which receive outside support. This is 100 more than officials predicted a month ago would be carried by outside funds. J. P. Morgan is the largest individual contributor with $100,000.

This support comes from city and state governments, welfare and community organizations, chambers of commerce, labor organizations and private contributors. Associations of soldiers and sailors are giving money to keep the agencies in operation until congress meets.

Wisconsin is fourth in the list of the states which maintain the largest number. New York state leads with 36, Illinois is second with 20, Ohio third with 26, Wisconsin fourth with 23. Texas has 29 and California 18. The other states all have less than this number.

OF PROGRESS AT LOAN WORKERS TELL C. OF C. LUNCHEON

Cannot Do Without Sleep.
Sleep is a necessity of life no less than food. No man has ever succeeded in keeping awake for more than a few days continuously. If he is forced to do so, as in ancient Chinese tortures, where constant tickling of the feet made sleep impossible, he falls at last into a comatose state from which he never awakes.

Relief ship, Pensacola, U. S. naval vessel, and forty Armenians slain by Turks at one time.

BETTER COMMUNITY SANITATION DRIVE URGED BY DR. WELCH

City Health Officer Fred B. Welch today issued the following appeal for the clean-up of alleys, ash piles, garbage cans and back yards in general.

"Realizing that a campaign for better sanitary conditions in a city of this size can never be successfully conducted without the cooperation and support of the daily press, I am taking this method of informing the people that a campaign for better community sanitation should be commenced at once."

"By an order of our city council all alleys are to be cleaned up by May 5. This should be the slogan for a general clean-up throughout the city."

"My attention has been called to the fact that many people have been placing their garbage on their ash piles, and in many barn yards manure has been allowed to accumulate. This practice has caused no harm on account of the low temperature but warm weather will soon be here and these unsightly piles are an ideal breeding place for myriads of flies."

"Knowing the important part the fly plays in the spreading of disease germs, we should do everything possible to remove the filth in which it breeds, thereby giving valuable aid to the fly campaign which in the past has been conducted with such good results in our city."

"In this general 'clean-up' let us not forget the outdoor closet, which is a necessary evil with us at the present time. Its walls can be brightened and disinfected by the use of whitewash. Slaked lime mixed with four volumes of water to the consistency of cream forms what is commonly known as milk of lime and is one of the best agents to disinfect the excreta in the privy vaults. It will destroy the bacteria and deodorize the vault."

"The disposal of garbage is an important subject to be considered by any city. Its satisfactory disposal is of great economic and sanitary importance; its retention on occupied premises is detrimental to health. This matter is now under consideration by our city administration and it is hoped that a satisfactory method will be evolved. There is no excuse for the accumulation of garbage in the outlying districts of this city because this organic matter can be destroyed by incineration or buried."

MILITARY RECORDS ABOUT HALF FILED FOR WAR HISTORY

Military records and photographs of about one-half of the total number of men who have been in service from Janesville district have been received and placed on file in the Rock County War History file, room 24, post office. The purpose of the War History work is developing in a very satisfactory manner, viz: to permanently preserve for future ages, a record of the military service performed by every man, together with his photograph and newspaper clippings that refer to him, and copies of letters that tell of his war experiences.

As all branches of the service are represented in Janesville, there is being preserved in this file, the true history of the huge system of training camps and the development of the war, often illustrated by kodak pictures or picture postcards.

In looking over the records of the file, one reads of the remarkable exhibition of 212 airplanes at one time, or the life of different units of soldiers, sometimes in quarters built for fancy stock, sometimes in luxuriously furnished barracks formerly occupied by German soldiers, sometimes for days at a time in "bivvies" and dug-outs.

Other records tell of escapes from mine-trawlers, from U-boat attacks, from the thrilling experiences of amphibious driving, while some tell of the French railroads run by Rock county men; some describe the huge supply and repair camps, and one mentions the absolute destruction and the utter loneliness of the battle field.

One reads of experiences in a German prison-camp; of guard duty under shell fire while the armistice was being signed, and of the surrender of the German Grand Fleet. The reader can imagine how it feels to "go over the top" six times in four days, and to figure up the number of "Huns" to a man's credit; one can marvel at the experience of being shot, and yet being grateful that one loses only one arm while so many acquaintances lose both a leg and an arm.

Committees are working in the churches, schools and organizations to secure these records, here, as well as in Evansville, Edgerton and Milton. The co-operation of the families of soldiers and sailors is requested to send in their military records to room 24, post office, open daily 1-3 p. m. to fill out their military record card, or to correct and complete the one already filed by the family.

BRAVE AMERICANS

Portraits of Medal Winners. Made at the Front by Official Portrait Painter of the A. E. F., JOSEPH CUMMINGS CHASE.

Sgt. Alvin C. York of Team, 828 Inf., 82 Division. Sgt. York was a drafted man who originally declared himself a conscientious objector, with religious scruples against killing. He is a Tennessee mountaineer who has "toted" a gun from childhood and is an expert squirrel shot. He developed into an excellent corporal, and his captain by force of argument from scripture convinced him that he should fight for his country. While out with a combat group, he came under the fire of a Hun machine gun nest. The sergeant in command and all the members of the group were killed outright excepting Corporal York and five men. York then assumed command and charged the enemy, capturing the machine gun nest and taking several prisoners. The party then started toward the American line, but again came under machine gun fire. Corporal York shouted to his five men to "cover" the prisoners, while he himself knelt and began firing his rifle at the enemy machine gunners, whose position was well constructed and protected. York fired twenty-four times and twenty-four Boches fell dead. The German unit surrendered, and Corporal York and his five men escorted to the nearest battalion headquarters 132 prisoners, including four officers. Members of the adjacent battalion, however, spread the story, and the facts were easily verified. His commander recommended the boy for the Distinguished Service Cross, and also for the Medal of Honor. The artist asked the boy if he were married. "No," drawled the Tennesseean, "I was always a kind of mommer's boy." (Copyright, 1919.)

COUNTY AID FOR NEEDY SOLDIERS PROPOSED

Madison, April 28.—Needy soldiers will be cared for by the counties if the Wisconsin legislature enacts a measure offered in the assembly by Representative Samuel Owens, Green Bay. And a soldier, sailor or marine may file with the county judge where such person resides on or before November 1 of each year a written statement of the facts as to his condition financially and ask for aid.
Before the granting of the aid, the county judge may order an investigation to be made by such a same process as is now conducted under the mothers' pension law. To assist in making this investigation the judge may July 1, 1919 appoint a soldiers' welfare board for the county to consist of three members, who shall hold office at the pleasure of the judge making the appointment. No salary or wages shall be paid to the members of the committee, but they shall be reimbursed for the actual expenses.
The bill then provides:
"Such board shall advise and consult with the judge regarding the best method of investigating cases, establish a basis of classification and other expenses to compute the amount of aid to be extended to persons and to assist them to extend aid granted economically and to advise them to keep accounts of expenses, recommend discontinuance and reductions in aid, and generally to act, consult and confer with each other and the court relative to any and all problems relating to the respective parties to be aided and as to the best methods of carrying out the provisions of the act efficiently."
The bill provides that the aid granted shall in no case exceed $20 a month except in emergency cases. No aid shall continue for a longer period than one year without re-investigation.
Persons receiving aid shall file a monthly statement showing the purposes for which the aid has been spent. The judge may require the person receiving aid to do constructive work as in his judgment he or she can do without detriment to the health or neglect of the household duties of the person seeking relief.
The measure provides that the county board "shall annually appropriate a sum of money sufficient to carry out the provisions of this act. The county board shall determine the amount to be paid and paid by each locality for the purpose. Each town, village and city shall levy a tax sufficient to reimburse the county for such advances of money as have been made."

News Notes from Movieland

—BY DAISY DEAN—

Leah Baird, whose latest screen appearance was in "As a Man Thinks," a Hodgkinson production, is not generally known as a scenario writer. She is better known as an actress of both stage and screen, but many of her pen products are familiar to film fans whether they are known as her work or not. Her scenarios have proved as successful vehicles for many of her contemporary stars.

When such people as Anita Stewart, Norma Talmadge, Ralph Ince and E. K. Lincoln bear witness to the fact, we surely need go no further.
Miss Baird's name has been connected with many successful productions, but few have been aware of her list of screen successes.

Following are several of her screen stories and the stars of same, who will vouch that Leah Baird can write for the photo-play public: "Kiss of Retribution," with Norma Talmadge; "The Moulding," with Anita Stewart; "A Soul in Bondage," with Earl Williams; and "The Dawn of Understanding," featured by E. L. Lincoln and was directed by Ralph Ince.
Many other stories that photoplay fans are familiar with have been born from the inspiration of the pen of Leah Baird.

CURD'S AT IT AGAIN

There is purely a day passes that a wedding does not occur in the film colony. One of the most interesting marriages came in the announcement that Alma Francis, well known star of both musical comedy and pictures, had married Robert Gordon, film star, who lately returned from service in the United States army. The wedding took place at the home of the bride's parents in Hollywood. The romance of the pair dates back more than a year, when the bride came west to play the leading role in one of Julian Elling's pictures.

Mrs. Gordon will leave this week for the east, whence she will begin work in rehearsals of one of Adolph Brim's new musical comedies. Mr. Gordon goes at the same time to fulfill a contract he made with J. Stuart Blackton, in which he will appear in Blackton production for a long time.

Norma Talmadge is studying ballet dancing. "It gives one the poise so necessary in making pictures," says Miss Talmadge.

Orla Carew has completed the first film made by her own newly-organized company.

A CHANCE TO LIVE

CAN A PROMISE FAIL? It all depended on much. One evening after supper she climbed into her father's lap.

"I want to know about promises," she began. "Don't a person have to do what he says in a promise? You said so."

Her father nodded absently, reading a paper. But the policeman didn't get the baby's carriage back," pursued Annie. "Course not; who thought he would?"

"But he promised," the child persisted. "Oh, well, perhaps he couldn't. Or maybe it wasn't worth his while. If we were rich and it was a pearl necklace instead of a baby cab, I guess they'd have found it."

This puzzled Annie. What had been to do with it? Didn't the policeman always take just as good as the children did in the tenements east of Third avenue as he did of the ones from the flat houses further west—the girls who wore nice clothes and brought cake to school for lunch?

"But—but why did he say he'd get it back if he couldn't or if he didn't want to?" Annie was hot on the trail of truth now.

"To tell you along, I suppose," Annie's father wanted to get on with his editorial column. He didn't notice his child's big-eyed look of dismay—which included him.

"Then—then you and mother and Aunt Maggie promise—?" Annie was feeling her way along the perilous path of logic. Her father interrupted.

"That is different," he said. "Your mother and Aunt Margaret and I love you and don't expect any return except that you be a good girl. Never mind the policeman, Nanette. Just you keep your own promises. Then at last you can expect other people to keep theirs—wherever they can. Run along now. Time to put your doll to bed."

But it was not as simple as all that to Annie. It was very puzzling indeed. You never could be sure, it seemed, how things would turn out, no matter what people promised. She climbed down and "ran along" to put her doll to bed. And herself.

The doll's name was Lillian Russell, the same being the most beautiful name and personality possible to a child of eight. She had named her straight from the luminously lovely fence posters over on First avenue by the gas house.

As she took off Lillian's dress Annie noticed how shabby and soiled it was. Her own frock, as she glanced at it, was shabby and soiled too. Worse than Lillian Russell's, if anything, for its back breadth didn't match its front.

This peculiarity of Annie's raiment was one of the torments of life. Annie's mother had her brother who was a salesman for a small dry goods house. When Uncle George returned from one of his trips he sometimes gave Annie's mother samples of cloth and gingham, and beautiful old fancy buttons that were left over and of no more use.

But Mrs. Morgan found ways to use pretty much everything. She had to, and a mother herself, she used to look back and marvel at her own poor mother's thrift. But at the time this thrift was being practiced on small Annie it was a humiliating thing.

Years ago, Mrs. Morgan discovered that Uncle George's samples could be pieced together and made into school dresses for Annie.

downstairs. He was sick, but had only a sick headache, and he would be better in a day or two. He seemed very much pleased to have me come.

When I went home and told my mother what I had done she scolded me and said I should have waited away because it was not proper for a girl to call on a sick gentleman.

I am sorry I did anything wrong. What do you think?"

I think you did nothing wrong. Since you were engaged it was all right to go to the man. Your thoughtfulness pleased him and so you should not worry about any impropriety.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am 21 years of age and I have two big friends whom I think exceedingly pleasant. One of them has just returned from camp.

The other one is very masterful. He wants me to give up all my other boy friends for him, although he knows I cannot marry for two or three years.

He told me that if he found others here when he called he would take his hat and leave unless I intimated to them to go. Would you stand for this?

Should I give up my other boy friend and wait two or three years for him?

YOURS QUESTIONINGLY.

Two years is too long a time for the young man to ask you to wait. Insist upon being free and entertaining whenever you want to. It is unreasonable in asking you to tie yourself to him for so long a time.

Of course you should not ask others to go home when they are calling. To do so would be violating the rules of hospitality.

I think if you wait you will meet some other young man whom you will like better because he is not so petty.

INFECTION IN STORES

Shaving brushes and other brushes should be boiled, or at least thoroughly washed with soap and water and dried well in direct sunlight for some hours, when first purchased.

Have some of these carried the bacilli of anthrax (malignant pustule) which is a very fatal infection in human beings.

Never rely upon the word "sterile" printed on a box of cartons or paper wrapper of goods from a store. It may have been sterile once upon a time. You must sterilize it yourself, by boiling, baking or steam under pressure, if you want to be sure it is sterile (free of germs).

Housewives need never hesitate to purchase staple foods and groceries from bulk boxes or barrels, provided the goods are clean and properly packed and clean. Great economies are possible in many instances when food is bought in bulk rather than in pretty packages.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

What Causes Constipation? Kindly tell me what causes constipation. (J. O. S. O.)

ANSWER—1. Neglect of regular habits. 2. The use of physics. 3. Too refined food. 4. Dignity, commonly called sedentary habit. 5. Insufficient water drinking. 6. Worry about the action of the bowels.

A Weak Wilted Man? I am twenty and have smoked cigarettes for four years. Can you tell me something that will take away the nicotine hunger as soon as one tries to quit? I think I must be lacking in will power. (L. A. S.)

ANSWER—There is no doubt that you are lacking in will power. Any fellow under twenty who smokes cigarettes has a weak will. Otherwise he would manage to find more natural outlets for his effeminate nervousness. And a stupid and address envelope for advice about breaking the habit. Cigarettes ought to be left to the movie heroes and the rather appropriate for pretty boys.

Let Like a Pig and Eat So Too? I am of average height and weight, 180 pounds. I have a habit of eating like a pig. We are all big eaters. When I try to diet I grow weak and faint and ravenously hungry. I walk two miles twice a day, yet the flesh remains. (Mary.)

ANSWER—Horace Fletcher was once in your position. He found a way out of it. Read his book "The New Gouton or Epicure" and follow out the simple plan he gives. He was inspired by the force of family example—your family no doubt harbors the popular conviction that the more you eat the stronger and healthier you will be, which conviction is responsible for a vast amount of ill health.

TWO TIERED SKIRT KEEPS LONG LINES

By ELOISE.

The suit always gets the first attention in the spring. This year the wrap needs little thought since fashion has given us only the cape and dolman and said, "choose." But with the suit it is an entirely different matter.

There are blouse suits, tailored ones, box coats and a few more kinds which are hard to make in a single word. One must consider well before purchasing. The short stout person must not think of a box coat while the tall thin person can choose anything but the straight unbelted tailor-made. The blouse suit is a bit hard for almost everybody to try.

This smart tricot suit pictured is built to help the tall woman conceal her height. The jacket is semi-cecil height. The skirt is semi-cecil at the neck but flaring as it reaches below the hips. It is slightly tucked and has patch pockets of tucked material both of which are features quite foreign to box coats.

The skirt is long and light but it has a long full tunic which changes somewhat the usual silhouette of this season. The long slim skirt, however, is still preserved. Every feature of the whole suit seems to have been specially designed for the unusually tall woman and yet all of the most fashionable fads have also found expression in the model.

MENU LIST

Breakfast: Strawberries and Cream. Jelly. Corn Muffins. Bacon.

Luncheon: Combination Salad. Bread and Butter Sandwiches. Orange Pudding. Tea.

Dinner: Cream of Tomato Soup. Boiled Tongue. Spinach. Horseradish. Lemon Pie.

GOOD RECIPES.

Economical Oven Dinner—For an oven dinner that is easily prepared, economical and substantial for a spring day, select one hour.

Brown spaghetti in skillet for a few minutes, place on kraut and bake one and one-half hours. Also put potatoes in to bake.

For dessert, the following apple pudding is nice, served warm or cold with milk or cream:

Cream together one cup sugar, one-half cup butter, substitute two eggs (beaten), one-half cup milk, one teaspoon cornstarch, two cups finely chopped apples, one teaspoon baking powder, pinch of salt and flour to make butter (about two cups).

Spaghetti Dish—One-half pound of spaghetti boiled in water until soft, then put in colander to drain.

Run one small can of tomatoes through colander to get all the seeds out, then put in spaghetti and mix all through. Have one-quarter pound of Swiss cheese grated, and mix in spaghetti and tomatoes with salt and pepper to taste.

Then take small lumps of butter and put over the top, put in oven and bake one-half hour, so it's nice and brown.

Good Dumplings—Two teaspoons flour, two teaspoons baking powder, one heaping teaspoon salt, enough cold water to make a soft dough. Drop by spoonfuls in boiling gravy. Cook 20 minutes.

Chop Suey Salad—Take a medium sized head of cabbage, remove the center and chop fine. Then fill this cabbage cup with one-half cup of chopped fine, olives, center cabbage and sweet green pepper. Over these ingredients put salad dressing.

Place the filled cabbage cup on a bed of lettuce leaves. It is very attractive and also very good. May be used as a center piece until ready to serve.

DISCOVERIES.

Easy Way to Wash Blankets and Other Woolen Goods—Boil till dissolved one-half cake white soap, one tablespoon borax and one tablespoon soda. Add to one-half tub warm water. Put in article to be washed, let stand about five minutes, then either with a vacuum washer or your hands, push back and forth under the water a few times. Wring very dry, rinse in water of the same temperature and dry very quickly.

You will be surprised at the whiteness and softness of the blankets. Wash wool dress skirts in the same way. They look like new.

After Having a Row and there is gray left in the hair, let get cold over night, the more the chicken just take out the lard off the top and save the other part in the bottom for other gravies. The lard you will find is good to fry meat with, as it is seasoned.

Remove Gum or Paint or anything sticky from your hands or clothes use gasoline on a rag.

One Consolation.

There is one thing about bicycle riding—a round-shouldered man looks as well as anybody else.

SIDE TALKS

—By— RUTH CAMERON

SHOPPING BY LETTER.

"It is such a nuisance being tied down so that you can't get into town," a woman said to me the other day. "Now the children were crazy for one of those sets of materials to make valentines with that they had at D's, and it would have been so nice for me to have had them amused that way. But you know how it is, I simply can't get out."

"Why didn't you order it by telephone or mail?" she said.

"Which is it? 'Won't' or 'Can't'?" I asked.

I realize that is a pretty strong statement for me to make about another's affairs. As I have said in these columns before, we are often wrong in estimating what another person can or cannot do. But here's the situation, decide for yourself whether it should be 'won't' or 'can't'.

The woman in question has a telephone, the shop at which the material are kept also has one. Also, my neighbor has a checking account, if she had cared to order by mail. She had only to write a letter and send a check, and a clerk would have filled her order. Had it been something that personal taste and selection were required in buying, she would have had some justification. But it wasn't.

Thinks It Can't Be Done.

The explanation is that she is one of those people who never had the habit of doing things by mail or telephone, and hence have an idea it can't be done.

I think there are a great many of these people. And I think they make a mistake in not using these channels of communication as well as the common method of personal contact.

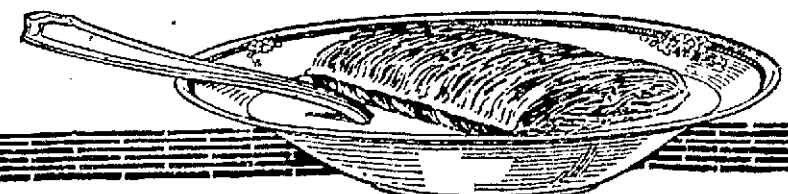

I speak with some authority, for it is only within the last few years that I have changed my habit myself, and I can't tell you how much it has saved me.

Let the Letter Do the Waiting.

For instance, if there is a mix-up on some bill I used to think the matter had to be talked over in person. Then I tried the other way of stating my case in a letter. True, it took me longer to write that letter than it would have to say the things in it, but did you ever go to a shop with an adjustment to make and have the pleasure of repeating your remarks to four or five people before you were finally handed over to the right person? I have, and I avoid all that now. Also, one frequently has to wait one's turn when one attends to a matter like that in person—a great inconvenience when one has a limited time for shopping. Whereas, if the letter waits its turn, you should worry. It is not convenient at present for me to go to town very often and every minute I have there is so imperatively needed for errands which demand personal judgment, that I have been forced to do all simple errands by letter. And I have found it indeed a worthwhile lesson.

GREEN FANCY

By GEORGE BARR McCUTCHEON

Copyright by Dodd, Mead and Co., Inc.

"You poor girl! Hang it all, perhaps you are right and not I. Sit still and I will reconnoiter a bit. If I can find a place where we can hide among these rocks, we'll stay here till the sky begins to lighten. Sit—"

"No! I shall not let you leave me for a second. Where you go, I go." She struggled to her feet, suppressing a groan, and thrust a determined arm through his.

"That's worth remembering," said he, and whether it was a muscular necessity or an emotional exaction that caused his arm to tighten on hers, none save he would ever know.

After a few minutes prowling among the rocks they came to the face of what subsequently proved to be a sheer wall of stone. He flashed the light, and, with an exclamation, started back. Not six feet ahead of them the earth seemed to end; a yawning black gulf lay beyond. Apparently they were on the very edge of a cliff.

"Good Lord, that was a close call," he gasped. He explained in a few words and then, commanding her to stand perfectly still, dropped to the ground and carefully felt his way forward. Again he flashed the light. In an instant he understood. They were on the brink of a shallow quarry.

Lying there, he made swift calculations. The quarry, no longer of use to the builder, was reasonably sure to be abandoned. In all probability some sort of a stone-cutter's shed would be found nearby. It would provide shelter from the line rain that was falling and from the chill night air. He remembered that O'Dowd, in discussing the erection of Green Fancy the night before, had said that the stone came from a pit two miles away, where a fine quality of granite had been found. Two miles, according to Barnes' quick calculations, would bring the pit close to the northern boundary of the Curtis property and almost directly on a line with the point where he and Sprouse entered the meadow at the beginning of their advance upon Green Fancy.

That being the case, they were now quite close to the stake and rider fence separating the Curtis land from that of the farmer on the north.

"Good," he said, more to himself than to her. "I begin to see light. Are you afraid to remain here while I go down there for a look around?"

Says Dr. Edwards, a Well-Known Ohio Physician

shain't no gone more than a couple of minutes."

"The way I feel at present," she said, jeckily, "I shall never, never from this instant till the hour in which I die, let go of your coat-tails, Mr. Barnes." Sailing the action to the word, her fingers resolutely fastened, not upon the tail of his coat but upon his sturdy arm. "I wouldn't stay here alone for anything in the world."

"Heaven bless you," he exclaimed, suddenly exalted. "And, since you put it that way, I shall always contrive to be within arm's length."

And so, together, they ventured along the edge of the pit until they reached the wagon road at the bottom. As he had expected, there was a ramshackle shed hard by. It was not much of a place, but it was deserted and a safe shelter for the moment.

A workman's bench lay on its side in the middle of the earthen floor. He righted it and drew it over to the boarding. . . . She laid her head against his shoulder and sighed deeply.

"Are you cold? You are wet—" "It was the excitement, the nervousness, Mr. Barnes," she said, drawing slightly away from him. "Isn't it nearly daybreak?"

He looked at his watch. "Three o'clock," he said.

There ensued another period of silence. She remained slightly aloof.

"You'd better lean against me," he said at last. "I am softer than the best boards, you know, and quite as harmless."

"Thank you," she said, and promptly settled herself against his shoulder. "It is better," she sighed.

"Would you mind telling me something about yourself, Miss Cameron?" I should like to know whether I am to address you as princess, duchess, or—just plain Miss."

"I am more accustomed to plain Miss, Mr. Barnes, than to either of the titles you would give me."

"Don't you feel that I am deserving of a little enlightenment?" he asked. "I am working literally as well as figuratively in the dark. Who are you? Why were you a prisoner at Green Fancy? Where and what is your native land?"

"Mr. Barnes, I cannot answer any one of your questions without jeopardizing a cause that is dearer to me than anything else in all the world. I am sorry. I pray God a day may soon come when I can reveal everything to you—and to the world. I am of a stricken country; I am trying to serve the unhappy house that has ruled it for centuries and is now in the direst peril. The man you know as Loeb is a prince of that house. I may say this to you, and it will serve to explain my position at Green Fancy: he is not the prince I was led to believe awaited me there. He is the cousin of the man I expected to meet, and he is the enemy of the branch of the house that I would serve. Do not ask me to say more."

"Your sympathies are with the unfortunate allies, the prince's are opposed? Is that part of Sprouse's story true?"

"Yes."

"And O'Dowd?"

"O'Dowd is anti-English, Mr. Barnes, if that conveys anything to you. He is not pro-German."

"Wasn't it pretty risky for you to carry the crown jewels around in a traveling bag, Miss Cameron?"

"I suppose so. It turned out, however, that it was the safest, surest way. I had them in my possession for three days before coming to Green Fancy. No one suspected. I was to deliver them to one of their rightful owners, Mr. Barnes—a loyal prince of the blood."

"But why here?" he insisted.

"He was to take them into Canada, and thence, in good time, to the palace of his ancestors."

"I am to understand, then, that not only you but the committee you speak of, fell into a carefully prepared trap. The treachery, therefore, had its inception in the loyal nest. You were betrayed by a friend."

"I am sure of it," she said bitterly. "If this man Sprouse does not succeed in restoring the—oh, I believe I shall kill myself, Mr. Barnes."

"The wall of anguish in her voice went straight to his heart.

"He has succeeded, take my word for it. They will be in your hands before many hours have passed."

"Is he to come to the Tavern with them? Or am I to meet him—"

"Good Lord!" he gulped. There was a contingency he had not considered. Where and when would Sprouse appear with his booty? "I—I fancy we'll find him waiting for us at the Tavern."

"But had you no understanding?"

"Er—tentatively." The perspiration started on his brow. He was thinking of something else: his amazing stupidity in not foreseeing the very situation that now presented itself. Why had he neglected to settle upon a meeting place with Sprouse in the event that circumstances forced them to part company in flight? Fearing that she would pursue the subject, he made haste to branch off onto another line.

"What is the real object of the conspiracy up there, Miss Cameron?"

"You must bear with me a little longer, Mr. Barnes," she said, appealingly. "I cannot say anything now."

"You said that tomorrow night would be too late. What did you mean by that?"

She waited a few seconds and then removed her head from his shoulder. He heard the sharp intake of her breath and felt the convulsive movement of the arm that rested against his. There was no mistaking her sudden agitation.

"I will tell you," she said, and he was surprised by the harshness that came into her voice. "Tomorrow morning was the time set for my marriage to that wretch up there. I could have avoided it only by destroying myself. If you had come tomorrow night instead of tonight you would have found me dead, that is all. Now you understand."

"Good God! You—were to be forced into a marriage with—why, it is the most damnable—"

"O'Dowd—God bless him!—was my only champion. He knew my father. He—"

"Listen!" he hissed, starting to his feet. "Don't move!" came from the darkness outside. "I have me gun leveled. I heard me name taken in vain."

"Don't Move!" Came From the Darkness Outside.

Thanks for the blessing. I was wondering whether you would say something pleasant about me—and, thank the good Lord, I was patient. But I'd advise you both to sit still just the same."

A chuckle rounded out the gentle admonition of the invisible Irishman.

CHAPTER XV.

Large Bodies Move Slowly—But Mr. Sprouse Was Smaller Than the Average.

There was not a sound for many seconds. She was the first to speak. "I am ready to return with you, Mr. O'Dowd," she said distinctly. "There must be no struggle, no bloodshed. Anything but that."

"O'Dowd spoke out of the darkness: 'You forget that I have your own word for it that you'll be a dead woman before the day is over. Wouldn't it be better for me to begin shooting at once and spare your soul the everlasting torture that would begin immediately after your self-produced decease?'"

A little cry of relief greeted this quaint reply. "You have my word that I will return with you quietly if—"

"Thunderation!" exclaimed Barnes wrathfully. "What do you think I am? A worm that—"

"Easy, easy, me dear man," cautioned O'Dowd. "Keep your seat. Don't be deceived by my infernal Irish humor. It is my way to be always polite, agreeable and—prompt. I'll shoot in a second if ye move one step outside that cabin."

"O'Dowd, you haven't the heart to drag her back to that beast of—"

THE WISHING PLANE

BY WILLIS WINTER.

(By Willis Winter.) Two little tots in their morning of play, Lured by the sunshine, had wandered away. Make-Believe Town they had left far behind. Thinking, of course, "Dear Mother won't mind." Deep in a wood, where the squirrels dwell They found a wonderful sort of a dell. Branches that drooped from the great willow trees, "Very-woo-woo." Former pretty walls that would sway in the breeze.

Fairies had woven a carpet for all (Using the leaves floating down in the fall—) Changing their color from beautiful green To all the shades of the rainbows between. Both tots soon spied at the end of the room A mossy couch where wood flowers bloom.

Jack looked at Jane—and right here we will have to tell you all about them, for they are the ones we are going to hear the most about in our story.

First of all, Jack was a little boy, and Jane was his sister. They lived in Make-Believe Town with their father and mother. Now most of the folks in Make-Believe Town had formed a big cushion, which just seemed to say: "Sleep, little folks, when you're tired of play."

"The Americans Fought Like Lions" Is Tribute Allies Paid to Our Lads

By MRS. HUMPHRY WARD.

I carried back as I summarize the first army's advance to my too brief stay at Valenciennes and the conversations of the evening with the army commander and several members of his staff. The talk turned largely on this point of training, staff work and general efficiency.

There was no boasting whatever, but one reads the pride of gallant and courageous men in the forces they had commanded. "Then we have not muddled through," I said, laughing to the army commander. Sir Henry smiled. "No indeed, we have not muddled through."

RESULTS ARE GRATIFYING.

And the results of this efficiency were soon seen. Take first the attacks of the First and Third armies on this section. North of Mouvaux, the canal was in the early morning of September 27 on a narrow front and spreading out behind the German line holding the canal, the front-shaped maneuver, brilliantly executed, which won reluctant praise from captured German officers, pushed on for Bourlon and Cambrai.

The First Division, following close behind, turned northward, with our barrage from the heavy guns far to the west, protecting their left flank toward the enemy. The German line, taking ground and villages as they went. Meanwhile the front German line, planned between our barrage behind them and the canal taken in front and rear, was broken. The First Division had nothing to do but to surrender.

"The day's results," says my informant of the First army, "were the great Hindenburg line, (in this northern section) finally broken, the heights before Cambrai captured, thousands of prisoners and great quantities of guns taken, and our line at its farthest point, only yards nearer Germany." A great triumph.

Meanwhile in the center—just where I have asked the reader of this paper to stand with me in imagination on the hillside overlooking the Canal du Nord—Gen. Byng's Third army, to which was assigned what was on the whole a minor operation compared to the tasks of the Fourth and First armies, forced the crossings in face of heavy fire, and, moving forward toward Cambrai in the half light of dawn, took trenches and villages from the fighting and retreating enemy.

10,000 MEN ARE TAKEN.

A map issued by the Tank Corps shows that close to this point on the Cambrai-Battleme road six tanks were operating, among them, no doubt, that agile leaper, whose trucks still show on the hillside, while the whole front of the Third and First armies sixty-five tanks were in action. By the end of that long day 10,000 prisoners had been taken, and 200 guns, an earnest of what was to follow.

It was on the front of the Fourth army, however, in the section from St. Quentin to Gouzeaucourt, that the heaviest blow was planned by the commander in chief. Here the "exceptional strength" of the enemy's position at strength, which could be dispensed with by the help of the tanks further north. So while the First and Third armies were advancing on the north for forty-eight hours an intense bombardment was maintained by the Fourth army, which drove the defenders of the famous line under water and cut them off from food and supplies. And on the morning of the 25th Gen. Rawlinson attacked.

I have no intention of repeating in any detail the story of that memorable day. The exploit of the 46th Division, which swam in swimming and capturing the southern section of the canal below Bellenglise, will long rank as one of the most amazing stories of the war.

WHILE TESTS OCCURRED.

Down the steep banks clambered the men, flung themselves into the water and cut their way across the canal under fire and clambered up again on the opposite bank. And the achievement is all the more welcome to British pride in British pluck when it is remembered that according to the German document I have already quoted it was an impossible one. "The deep canal cutting from the southern end of the Hindenburg line constitutes a strong obstacle. The enemy will hardly attack here."

But it was precisely here that "the enemy" did attack. It was not, however, at this point that the severest fighting occurred. No doubt just because the German command thought the canal at this point an insurmountable obstacle, it was comparatively lightly held. But across the great tunnel to the north of Bellenglise, where the canal passes for nearly two miles underground, the main Hindenburg line, carrying it from west to east of the canal itself and it was here the fiercest resistance was put up.

AMERICANS IN FIGHT.

The two American divisions had here the post of honor and led the advance. It was a heavy task, but it was possible to master the German outpost line completely before the advance started, and numerous small bodies of the enemy left behind in machine gun posts, tunnels and dugouts were able to harass it seriously for a time.

But the "Americans fought like lions"—how often I heard that phrase from our own men in France!—and although from officers present at the battle I generally understood that the Americans were higher than experienced troops seasoned by long fighting, that only intensified the sympathy and admiration. It was from their eagerness to push on that they lost so heavily, and that advanced elements of the American divisions were for a time cut off.

What nothing daunted these fresh and untired men. Their sacrifices, as Marshal Haig has recently said, addressing Gen. O'Ryan, who commanded the 27th Division in this fight, were made with a courage and devotion unsurpassed in all the dread story of this war.

The memory of our great attack on the Hindenburg line on September 26, 1918, in which the 27th American Division, with troops from all parts of the British empire, took so gallant and glorious a part, will never die, and the service then rendered by American troops will be remembered with gratitude and admiration throughout the British empire.

BIG DAY IN HISTORY.

Yes, that misty September day marks a great date in the history of the empire, surely also in the history of that Anglo-American fellowship to which men and women on both sides of the Atlantic are everywhere quietly looking as the noblest and also the most practical hope of the future.

And it was a culminating day in the history of the war. It took six more days of sharp fighting to capture the last remnants of the Hindenburg line, and six more weeks before Germany, beaten and demoralized by sea and land, accepted the armistice terms imposed by the allies. But on September 29 the war was for all practical purposes won.

Gen. Gouraud at the time was making his brilliant advance in Champagne. The Americans were pushing forward in the Argonne. Both advances were indispensable; but it was the capture of this great fortified system which really decided the war.

It was the climax of two months' fighting, in which French, British and American troops had played to the full the part laid down for them by the history of the preceding years, and in which it fell to the British army to give the final and victorious blow.

Together to the End.

At last they had reached the top. At last they had attained the height of their ambitions. They looked down upon the world with lofty regard, after years of trials and tribulations, their goal was reached.

Upon the topmost peak of Mt. Hoozarat, they stood. The world lay at their feet. After some hours, they sought to descend. In other words they wished to come down. That is to say, to reach the bottom was their desire. Or, to put it plainer, they wanted to get to the base of the mountain, the valley.

To walk down looked easy. To fall down, looked easier still. Be it to their credit that they chose the former method, because in other words, they wished to come down. That is to say, to reach the bottom was their desire. Or, to put it plainer, they wanted to get to the base of the mountain, the valley.

"When I look down and see how easy it is to depart this life, it makes me think of all the meat, drink, pleasure have done to me. I feel despondent when I think of all the dirty tricks some nuckers have done me. I feel degenerate miserable and confoundedly sad."

"I sympathize with you, Hawley," sighed Cullen Darr, and to prove it, he let a tear slide off his nose.

By this time they were on the first narrow pass going down.

"There was the time (Cholly Chigg, ouch!) I nearly slipped that time," gasped Hawley, suddenly.

"I remember that time, Hawley," sobbed Cullen. Two tears slipped off his cheek this time.

"Then there was another man. I loaned him ten dollars and—Wow! That rock that went over just now darn near took me with it!"

By this time they were on the narrowest pass of all. It behooved them to be careful. But oh, no! Hawley just had to tell more and things to make them both nod their heads and sway with sorrow and trouble.

"I remember that crook, H-Hawley," cried Cullen, wildly.

"Then, there was this time my mother-in-law sent my wife back to me and—here both men sobbed so heart-rendingly and their tears blinded them so pitifully and there were so many of them, that they soaked the ground around their feet and it gave way."

"Twins said—passing said."

Hurry, Robbie Redbreast. As fast as you can fly. For Billy Bunny in the trap will pine away and die. So bring a hammer and a saw and some one with a big, strong paw.

And now, of course, you remember what happened in the last story. But in case you don't, let me tell you. Billy Bunny was caught in a box trap. He had stepped into it, he was at a carrot, and then, all of a sudden, quicker than a wink, the door had slammed to and—there you are, and there was Billy Bunny a prisoner! And if Robbie Redbreast hadn't been just at that time, goodness knows what would have become of that poor little rabbit.

Well, that kind little bird flew away as fast as he could and pretty soon he came to the cave of the Friendly Brown Bear, and, wasn't it lucky, he was at home? Yes, sir! He was sitting just outside his cave on a bench smoking a corn-cob pipe, when he heard what had happened to Billy Bunny. He knocked the ashes out of that pipe, click, click, just like that, and took down his big axe, which was hung up on a peg behind the door, and started right off for the Pleasant meadow. But he couldn't run quite as fast as the little robin could fly, but, anyway, it wasn't very long before he came up to the box in which the little rabbit was caught.

"Hello, Billy Bunny," said the kind old bear, bending down and placing his mouth close to the crack in the door. "Are you here?"

"I don't know whether I'm here or not," answered the poor little rabbit. "It's dreadfully dark inside this box."

"Well, never mind," said the kind old bear. "Put your paws over your ears and don't get frightened, for I'm going to knock a hole in the door with my axe." And then the bear swung his axe and hit the door, a dreadful hard whack. But it didn't break open.

"Oh dear," said Billy Bunny. "You almost knocked me out of my feet."

"Never mind," said the kind old bear. "Hold your paws over your ears and hold your breath, and don't be afraid." And then the bear swung his axe way up high in the air and brought it down with such a tremendous blow that the door broke all to smithereens, and one of the splinters flew off and hit the old bear on his left leg so hard that he limped for three days and two nights and had to pay his doctor's bill besides.

Well, it didn't take the little rabbit long to hop out, let me tell you, and he was so glad to be free again that he opened his knapsack and gave Robbie Redbreast and the Friendly Brown Bear a lollipop and then they all sat down and sang:

"Be careful where you go, Or perhaps you'll stub your toe, Maybe'll want to stop."

And then they all danced around in a ring, for they were so happy, so happy all the time, because Rob and Bruin had set Billy free.

Look before you hop.

A means of making use of the electro magnet under water has been devised in Japan, and it promises to be of great assistance in locating sunken vessels, to recover, which salvage operations on a big scale are expected after the war.

DEHAVAN

Delavan, April 26.—Last night during the contest the auto belonging to G. W. Hollister was taken about 10 miles from town.

Mr. Hollister went to get his car where he had parked it in front of the hotel, but found it missing. A search was made, but the car could not be found.

The morning Chief of Police Fleming found the car on Geneva street, and it had been driven over one hundred miles. This practice is becoming very serious.

Delavan was victorious in both oratorical and declamatory contests held last night in the opera house. In the oratorical contest Oakman Fowler was awarded first place, and Robert Godfrey, Whitewater, second place.

Miss Marian Lynch, Delavan, won first place and Miss Christine Morz, Elkhorn, second place in the declamatory contest. The opera house was crowded.

At Lake Geneva, Whitewater and Elkhorn being well represented. On Friday, May 31st, the winners here will speak at Whitewater.

JANES WIN IN RAIN, 5-4, IN 5 INNINGS

By George McManus.

HANDFUL OF FANS WATCH LOCALS LICK ROCKFORD

BULLETIN
The Janes will play the fast Edgerton team next Sunday on the latter's grounds. The winning team is to take 60 percent of the gate, and the losing club 40 percent. Manager G. H. Smith told Manager Eagon of the Janes over the long distance phone this morning that the Janes had "better look out; that Edgerton had a remarkably strong team." He hadn't heard of the Janes' victory yesterday.

(BY K. L. EAGON.)
The Janes swam through four and a half innings of heavy rain and a half inning of a good rain yesterday afternoon at the fair grounds and beat the Rockford Maroons, 5 to 4.

Less than 30 persons witnessed the contest. Incidentally, the Janes went flat bust.

With a salary list and guarantee of more than $125, inclement weather caused most of the fans to believe that the game would not be played. Consequently, when play was due to begin, and a constant drizzle was being billed, there was only a score on hand to see it.

Had the weather been fair and warm yesterday, there undoubtedly would have been one of the largest crowds on hand that ever witnessed a baseball game in this part.

Janes' Scott 'Em.

The Janes won because they recovered their batting eye and gave Nick Kearns, former big league pitcher, right-edge support. Three errors were chalked against the Janes, but two of these were due solely to the sloppy condition of the infield. Bad judgment on a quick throw by Kearns, himself, forced the other misplay. The Rockford gang had five errors on the slate against them. None of them, however, gave the Janes any trouble. Most of the errors were made by the Janes, and the local club being put up on his and headwork.

It is a crowd had seen the rejuvenated Janes perform yesterday. The crowd would have been made in Janesville, with the rain and general conditions made Nick Kearns none too good a twirler. Kearns only worked yesterday after he had gotten himself into holes. Just before the game, he finally pulled the game (after the Janes had played the official four and a half innings necessary to legalize a game) Nick Kearns got himself into a hole. He was hit by a shortstop, quite a miss. For that the Chicago Rockford fellows to be content with two puny hits. With one down in the fifth, and the score 5 to 2 against the Janes, the game was over. The three men who were hit by the Janes, although they were exceptionally wild, hit three batsmen, one twice in two times up.

Kakuske, Viney, Menzel and Bond showed for the Janes.

Herb Kakuske, the first man to bat in the game for the locals, drove a fierce three-bagger to deep center. He scored the first run for the Janes. A moment later when the shortstop fumbled, Bond's hot drive, Bond, third man up, cracked out a two-bagger, scoring Dope. Bond scored later on a fielder's choice and a long fly.

The Janes did not have a chance in left field, but he snuffed out a beautiful Texas leaguer in the third inning, scoring Menzel, who had got on the paths with a clean single to left. Viney also pilfered a base.

Menzel made a spectacular debut. The big fellow, whose arm has prevented him from taking the mound, caught a long fly in left field and threw it in. He hit in two trips to the plate. Incidentally, his batting and fielding averages are both an even thousand.

Bond Looked Immense.

Bond, of Lake Forest academy, was the hit of the Janes yesterday. He fought every inch of the way, being so rampant at times as to elicit some caustic replies from members of the Rockford team. Bond kept the visitors from scoring by a clever play in the third inning. With a man on third, a Rockford player hit sharply to Bond, who, after threatening the foe, on the far corner to the extent of keeping him close to the bag, nabbed the batter at first base by a quick throw.

There was more cheering for the home bunch at the fair grounds Sunday afternoon from the twenty or thirty loyal fans who saw the game, than there has been altogether with the several hundred spectators at the three other games the Janes participated in.

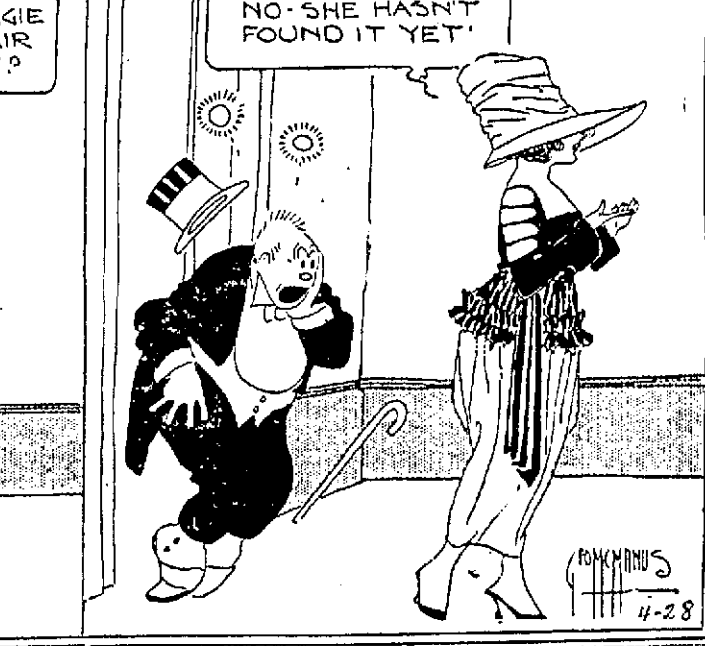

All the Janes need is some local support by the fans, a little more practice and some financial backing. As the team stands now, it is through. It took every cent the club banked every day to guarantee for Sunday, which had to be paid whether or not rain called off play. Until some cash can be laid aside, the Janes will reorganize and play with the men they have and the team they can get.

Be at Meeting Tonight.

A special meeting will be held Monday night at the Gazette office. The meeting is for all members of the Janes, past, present and hopeful. A lineup will be chosen for next Sunday. Any fan interested in baseball is urged to be present at this meeting. All suggestions will be heard and voted upon, if it is desired.

The Janes have not lined up a game for next Sunday. Wires are out for a game with Edgerton, White-water, Port Atkinson, Madison or Beloit. The Janes will take the best they can get. The Janes already have accepted a date here May 11 with the Beloit Apprentices. This should draw a huge crowd for the Beloit bunch have a fast team.

BRINGING UP FATHER

Manager Roos of the Rockford team pleaded with Manager Eagon of the Janes for a return date. He wanted to bring the Maroons back to Janesville on May 11, but the Beloit aggregation have been eager for that date. Anyway, it would hardly be good policy to accept a return date with Rockford here. If Rockford wants to take us on their own grounds, everything will be jake.

Bond, Nordquist and Belting, winning a ball game as the rain became a torrent.

BADGERS BREAK EVEN IN DOUBLE-HEADER

The Badger Tribe broke even in a scheduled double-header at Rock Hill diamond yesterday afternoon. They lost the first game to the Rock Hill stars, 24 to 3, but claim a 9 to 3 victory over the Junior Yanks in the second, scheduled game because the Yanks failed to appear. The Yanks evidently forgot that yesterday was Sunday.

The Badgers blame their trimming in the first game to the rain and muddy diamond and the absence of their star fielder. They are confident of winning the second game of the series which will be played next Sunday.

A. L. CROWDS GOOD.
New York, April 28.—Despite wretched weather the three American league games which could be opened on opening day without the aid of an ice pick last week drew about 40,000 fans. That's 12,000 more than three teams drew in 1912. This with the high enthusiasm reported from all baseball parks, indicates the game has been derelicted from the depths.

ALL-STARS GET SIX SWATS FOR 15-1 WIN OVER FOX HALL NINE

The All-Stars won their second game of the season at Bailey's diamond yesterday afternoon walloping the Fox Hall nine to the beautiful tune of 15 to 1. The game was called at the end of the fifth inning on account of rain.

"Bevo" Bick, pitching his first game of the season allowed only two hits and issued but one pass. McGinley was caught three times trying to steal second. The heavy hitter of the day, polling out three two-baggers in four times at bat, cracked a triple in the first inning for the longest drive of the game.

Crowley who caught for the Stars had his mean old arm working and caught three trying to steal second. His accurate pegging put a stop to all base pilfering.

Thiede was knocked out of the box in the first inning when the Stars piled upon to win the game. Bick slipped over two dark ones that he didn't touch and then wound one around Cleveland's neck for a strike-out.

The game will be played at Bailey's diamond beginning at 2:30.

The Janes didn't have enough money in the janiper this morning to buy a light lunch for the anemic canary—but they won a good ball game.

Nick Kearns had the wild women of Bowdway backed off the map. He his four batsmen, one of them twice. The fellow who got beamed for a duo of smacks said if he battled against the Chicago speed demon again, he was going to have the strikes called from the bench.

"Hurricane" Bond, the fire eating third baseman from Lake Forest, got several animals belonging to the Rockford Gang. He was kidding the Illinoisans all through the five innings of play.

BLOOMERS SIGN ZEISLER.
Bloomington, Ill., April 28.—Manager Dunn of Bloomington has signed Pitcher Matt Zeisler of Chicago. Infielder Robert Catlin, of the Chicago Cubs, and Catcher Walter Hensline of Indianapolis.

POSTPONE A. A. U. GAMES.
Chicago, April 28.—Owing to the serious illness of President Charles Dean of the Central A. A. U., the meeting of the board of managers called for May 3 to award outdoor championships has been indefinitely postponed. President Dean is suffering from a nervous breakdown caused by overwork in the interest of amateur athletics during the last winter.

REVIVE MEXICAN RACING.
Juarez, April 28.—Racing probably will be resumed at the Juarez Jockey club plant near here. It was announced by the local representatives of the Jockey club of Juarez, which is owned by an American syndicate of horsemen. The resumption of normal conditions in northern Mexico coupled with the fact that stations may be operated here, is expected to assure the reopening of the Juarez track which has been closed for two years. The double attraction of racing and open saloons is expected to attract the crowds of tourists from the United States, the local officials say and they are already negotiating the erection of a large, modern tourist hotel here.

BLACKHAWKS LOSE TO FOOTVILLE NINE, 3-1

Nine big Blackhawks journeyed to Footville Sunday. While there they engaged in a game of baseball with the Footville nine. After four and a half innings, counting around in heavy mud and amid intermittent downpours of rain, the game was called. The scorekeeper's book showed: Footville, 3, Blackhawks 1.

"Fate" Flennig, on the mound for the Hawks struck out seven men and allowed but three hits but was given little support in the field. Lentz, twirling for Footville, struck out six men and gave out three hits.

The two teams will meet again next Sunday afternoon at 2:30 at the fair grounds here.

Most of the box office men were so busy yesterday, they didn't have time to sell any tickets.

The writer froze two fingers and three toes keeping box score yesterday—but it was worth it.

"Big Ben" Menzel had one, large day. You might say, "he covered right field at a glance." We don't see how any ball could fall through him. And he's a hound with the willow.
